

Dawson Cooper

November 11, 1901 – January 28, 1927

(From Charleston Gazette – February 6, 1927)

Hinton

Dawson Cooper, a young man of this city, was found dead in his automobile at Princeton recently. He was discovered by people passing the East Side drug store where Mr. Cooper was employed. In one hand he held a cigarette and in the other was a key to the drug store, which indicated his death was sudden.

Mr. Cooper was a native of Hinton and a graduate of the Hinton high school and completed the course as a pharmacist at the West Virginia university. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Cooper, of Hinton, and besides his parents, leaves three sisters, Mrs. E. M. Gould and Mrs. Roy Jones, of Huntington, and Mrs. R. B. Deel, of Logan, and two brothers, Clair, of Richwood, and John Cooper, of this city.

Mr. Cooper was a Mason and an Elk and was 25 years of age.
